A BUSY YEAR IS PROMISED

In The Upper River Mining Districts--Government Appropriates Cash For Trails--Townsite At Boundary--Railroads Planned

Will Make Shingles

Another of Wrangell's industries will be on the jump this season—the shingle mill. F. E. Smith, Wrangell's old time milkman, arrived up on the Jefferson and will operate the mill for the heirs of the Gano estate. The mill has long been noted for the quality of its product, and "Dad" says that the shingles this year will be kept up to the old standard. The intention is to have the mill ready for business and cutting shingles by the first of the month. It will be run at the utmost capacity all the year, and will turn out close to four million shingles. Bert Smith accompanied his father north and will have charge of the engine at the mill. The Larson boys will attend to the sawing and packing.

A. B. Camp Assured

Dr. Shurick is meeting with the best of success in securing charter members for a camp of the Arctic Brotherhood here in Wrangell. He already has within half-a-dozen of the required number of signers and will undoubtedly get these and forward the charter application in to headquarters within the next week or so.

Charles Vance, accompanied by J. J. Fowler and son, left for upper river points yesterday.

The latest news from the sound should bring the smiles to the faces of Wrangellites—every bit of it tells of the promise of good times for the coming season. The scarcity of fish in the south is steadily bringing up the price offered for salmon, both fresh and canned, and the fish are starting to appear. Work on the new wharf is at last moving apace, and the cold storage plant there is assured.

And mining—that is the feature that will make this region the busy one this year of 1911, above the rest. The upper river country is to be prospected and worked in a manner unapproached since the famous days of the Cassiar excitement. The pioneer of this movement, L. T. Watson, has been in town this week on his way up the river to Telegraph Creek, getting together his outfit and crew for the trip.

To the Sentinel man he said, "I am headed for Telegraph, from which point I expect to go out with a big outfit to deliver supplies around the country at places where the concern I am employed by, headed by R. T. Elliot, the well known Victoria, B. C., barrister and mining man, will have outfits at work during the entire season. I expect to be away until the river opens, figuring on coming down on the first boat after the opening of navigation, stopping on the way down of course at the Kirk property on which my people have secured a bond, and which they intend to work thoroughly this season. The probabilities are that we shall have a steamer on the river ourselves this year, under the command of Capt. Jackman, whom Wrangellites will remember as the captain of the Pt. Simpson plying out of here during the seasons of 1909 and '10.

Upon arrival here, I expect to meet a party of mining men who are going up the Iskut to thoroughly examine and prospect the mineral claims I located on the river last season, the assays of the samples secured therefrom being most satisfactory.

Big Fire At Douglas

Late Juneau papers bring the news of a disastrous fire at Douglas Thursday, Twentyone buildings on Front street were destroyed, the loss aggregating close to a hundred thousand dollars. Notwithstanding the fact that very little insurance was carried, everybody will rebuild at once.

Frank Waterbury, an old-time Wrangellite, returned on the Jefferson, and will remain in town for a time.

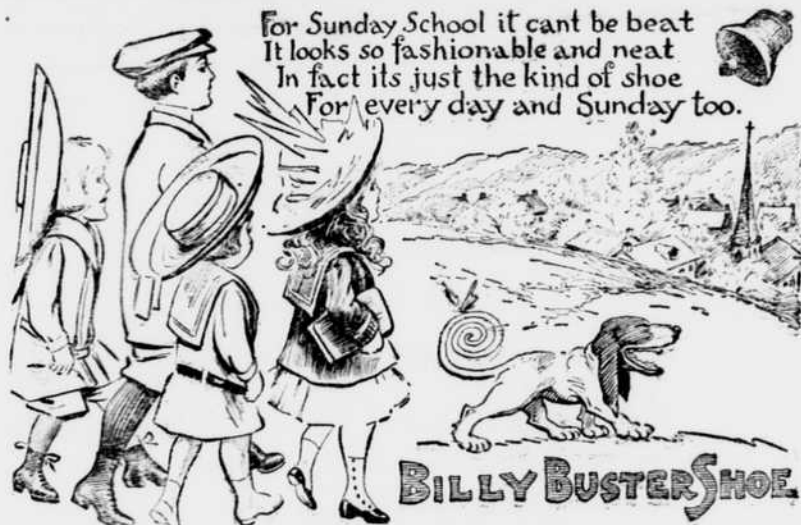

There's a rumor that still another saloon is contemplated here in Wrangell. Well, the more the merrier.

Operation For Hernia

Dr. Dawes, assisted by Doctor Pressnell of Haines, and Doctors Shurick and Mathis, operated on Mrs. Dave Lewis for hernia, yesterday morning. At last reports the little woman was doing nicely, and will no doubt be around again in a few weeks as well as ever.

L. T. Watson with Eddie Kalkins and the Stick native "Pat" are headed up river for Telegraph creek and points beyond.

While running from her anchorage to the floating dock, yesterday, the Stikine struck a partially submerged log and stove a hole in her hull.

winter I succeeded in interesting the authorities in the Iskut district, and the result will be a trail built along that stream this year by the provincial government, the probabilities being that it will be constructed from the confluence of the two forks of the river, to the properties owned by Wrangell people and from there to our properties. It is barely possible, however, that the road may be built from the boundary clear up the river, but it isn't certain as yet. But you can put it down that a trail will be built, for the government is very anxious to open up that country and realizes that such cannot be done with out the trail.

By the way, my company has staked a townsite just this side of the customs house at the boundary—it is to be named Yates City, in honor of Judge Yates, one of Victoria's most prominent jurists. The present plans of the company call for the surveying of the site this summer and the erection of a general store or trading post and a hotel there, a great convenience to the miner and prospector of that region.

There are ore bodies up the Iskut that are going to make the eyes of the mining world open to their limit, while the headwaters of the Stikine, clear over to and beyond the Deese Lake country contains as good placer ground as there is in the world today. There are now two railroad lines spying out the Deese Lake country, the Mann interests building and operating the road from the head of Portland Canal, and a Scotch company headed by Campbell Johnston. The latter company recently secured a charter, but outsiders are up in the air as to where their salt water terminal will be. Naturally they are not making it public as yet. So you see, taking all together, the year 1911 is to be a hummer, for you can rest assured that our company is not the only one with their hearts set on exploring this promise land, there are plenty of others, many of whom will find values."

Do not neglect a cough—it is the source of more serious diseases—it is not only inconvenient—it is dangerous. Nyal's Cherry Cough Syrup will remove all possibility of further infection. Shurick Drug Co., local agents.

George Irving Resigns

George Irving, who for many years has been assistant district attorney at Ketchikan, came up on the Ramona last night and this morning tendered his resignation to the district attorney. Mr. Irving's friends have known for some time past he contemplated leaving the government service, as soon as certain arrangements he had working out were concluded. Mr. Irving will come to Juneau to live.

Under District Attorney Boyce and the present incumbent of the office, George Irving secured for himself, by dint of successful prosecutions, the reputation of being one of the best attorneys in criminal cases before juries in the district and his happy ability to mix made him a general favorite with everyone. The universally expressed opinion is that the district attorney's office will be badly crippled by Mr. Irving leaving it.—Juneau Record.

HEALTH Costs Little

It requires but a few minutes each day to fortify the system against such dread diseases as Rheumatism or Bright's Disease.

Impaired action of the kidneys is the forerunner of these two diseases, and if prompt and effective treatment is not begun it often means either of the two.

The time required to take a few doses of
